

Pam Johnson

Pam Johnson, of Floyd, Iowa, is the past President of the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA). She is the first woman to hold that office. A sixth generation farmer, Johnson raises corn and soybeans with her husband, two sons and their young families. They also manage a seed business and are member investors in ethanol and biodiesel plants.

On the national level, Johnson currently serves as a board member of the Foundation for Food and Agriculture Research (FFAR) and a member of the National Coalition for Food and Agriculture Research (C-FAR) and the National Corn-to-Ethanol Research Center (NCERC). She served as a delegate to the U.S. Grains Council. During her presidency of the National Corn Growers Association, Johnson chaired NCGA's Research and Business Development Action Team and its Bylaws Committee. She also served as the board liaison to the NCGA Grower Services Action Team and the organizational liaison to the National Pork Producers Council.
